

Name	LEITER-R (INTERNATIONAL PERFORMANCE SCALE-REVISED)
Purpose:	Non-verbal ability test
Short description:	The Leiter-R is an individually administered test designed to assess cognitive functions in children and adolescents ages 2-20. The battery measures nonverbal intelligence in fluid reasoning and visualization, as well as appraisals of visuospatial memory and attention. The test is divided into a visualization and reasoning battery and an attention and memory battery
Academic area/skills:	General intelligence/cognitive ability
Target group:	2:0-20:11 years
Survey method:	Individual
Standardization:	US standards
Adapted/non-adapted to Norwegian conditions:	English original edition
Published:	1997
Author:	Gale H. Roid and Lucy J Miller
User groups/user qualifications:	Authorized psychologist or cand.ed, cand.paed with specialization in pedagogical-psychological counselling and cand.paed. spes (UiO); master program in special needs education and master program in pedagogy with field of study pedagogical-psychological counselling from UiO